HEAVY snowstorms brought much of Haverhill to a standstill – closing schools and causing accidents on the roads.

their doors to pupils in Haverhill, as well as Hedingham School in Sible Hedingham, Castle Camps Primary School and Granta Special School in Linton.

Charles Handingham, headteacher at Coupals, said the heavy snow had made the site "unsafe" for children but that it was "business as usual" by Tuesday.

He said: "Normally we are open whatever the weather, but due to the fact that we are below road level the snow had really blocked us off."

"It was felt that the site was unsafe for the children and so we closed on Monday. But it was business as usual the next day."

The schools which managed to remain open reported a high level of attendance, despite the cold snap.

Howard Lay, headteacher at Samuel Ward Academy, said: "We had about 90 per cent of all our pupils, only four per cent down on usual, which was great to

Eyes down for bingo

BINGO and live music will be available at the next Haverhill Round Table event for pensioners. Due to poor weather last Sunday, the event was cancelled and it will now take place on Sunday, March 4 at Haverhill Arts Centre. New tickets will need to be collected from the centre from Saturday, February 18. Entry will include a free drink on arrival, a live band and bingo with lunch on the first sitting and an early evening meal on the second sitting.

Upgrade at hospital

A £1.2M breast imaging upgrade has been completed at West Suffolk Hospital. The hospital's two on-site mammography machines have been replaced with the state-of-the-art machinery and a third digital imaging room created to help increase capacity. The hospital has also taken delivery of a new digital mobile breast screening unit to provide an imaging service in the community.

Adventures on the wing

CHILDREN can join Plop, the baby barn owl, for a day of live music, puppetry and story-telling. The show, written specially for youngsters, will follow Plop, the owl who was afraid of the dark, as he journeys into a night time world of campfires, starry nights and moonlit adventures. The event will take place on Wednesday, February 15 at 2pm at Haverhill Arts centre. For information, phone (01440) 714140.

Look who came crawling home!

BY EMILY NICE

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

BUGSY, a much-loved pet tortoise who made an ever-so-gentle run for it more than five months ago, has been found less than half a mile away.

He escaped from his home in Streetly End, West Wickham in August, crawling across a field before becoming stuck.

After more than five months of searching and putting up posters, the Cameron family – mum Lucy, dad Malcolm, Eve, 13, Charlie, 11 and Mae, 7 – had given up hope.

But then their neighbour delivered Buggy to their door safe and sound.

Lucy said: “I thought he would be found in the bottom of someone’s pond or as just an empty shell.

“I said I would kiss him if we found him, but I just gave him a big hug and gave my neighbour, Shaun, a big kiss.”

Shaun and his girlfriend, Shelly, had been out walking their dogs along Webb’s Road, close to the Camerons’ home, when one of them was distracted by something in the bushes.

They discovered it was Buggy, a Hermann tortoise, stuck in a wire fence.

He was awake but should have gone into hibernation in October.

Lucy added: “He was really undernourished and underweight.

“He normally buries himself in the ground to hibernate in October.

“He had rust on his shell and the neighbours said he was stuck in tight, so I think he must have been there a long time.

“He is now under heat lamps to get his temperature up and has put on some weight.

“We are so lucky we had a mild winter and he was found before the temperatures dropped.”

An expert from Arbury Road Vets said: “If the tortoise had not been found before the cold snap it would have died.

“Tortoises can hibernate in different ways; some people put them in the fridge, as the optimum temperature for them during hibernation is around 5C.

“Left to their own devices they tend to bury themselves, but if this one was unable to do that, it would have sadly frozen to death.

“Keeping the tortoise awake and warm now is the best thing to do as it is unlikely it would sleep for long. The minimum time they should hibernate is six to eight weeks – the maximum about four months.”

Council clears way for stress-free Jubilee street parties

STREET party stress will be a thing of the past after council leaders decided to cut red tape.

To help residents throw celebrations in honour of the Queen’s Jubilee, Suffolk County Council has announced that it is simplifying the application process.

Previously, the responsibility of approving street parties rested with district and borough councils, as well as the county council.

But from yesterday, the county council will be the only public body responsible for all street party applications, making the process smoother for organisers.

Cllr Guy McGregor, SCC’s portfolio holder for roads and transport, said: “I am thrilled that we are able to make organising a street party more of a stress-free event this year.”

To ensure minimal impact on traffic flow, the county council is urging party organisers to consider celebrating in community areas such as recreation grounds, cul-de-sacs and no through roads. Residents will incur no fee if they are able to do this.

Celebrations will centre around an extended weekend on June 2, 3, 4 and 5, and party organisers are urged to contact the county council as early as possible.

Weather is snow problem for zoo's animals

FROSTY weather was enjoyed by animals and people alike after a sudden snow storm at the weekend.

African lions, zebras, porcupines, red necked wallabies, snow leopards and snowy owls got to grips with the sub-zero conditions at Linton Zoo with keepers struggling in with extra water, food and dry bedding.

The zoo was unable to open its gates this week due to the inclement weather and Kim Simmons, spokeswoman for the park, said: "Many of our animals should be well used to cold and icy conditions but some of our other exotic residents find the snow exciting too."

"You may have heard that several times over the last week due to the snow and ice we have been unable to open our gates to visitors."

"So we would like to take this opportunity to say an extra special thank-you to everyone for their generous donations, in lieu of a visit, during this difficult time."

In Haverhill Peter Hall, 24, and his father Mike Hall, 52, of Lundy Close, got busy building two snowmen in their back garden and nearby street, which took them nearly six hours.

He said: "The bigger snowman started as a small snowball and was rolled from our doorstep up to Shetland Road."

"It stands about seven feet tall, about five feet wide and four feet thick."

"It looks like it weighs about two tonnes."

see. We had a few problems with cars getting in and out, which we solved using spades and elbow grease."

Farmers and council gritting teams helped clear rural roads in Suffolk, while more than 50 vehicles careered off the roads around Cambridgeshire.

On Monday, motorists faced delays after a lorry and a car were in collision on the A1307 in Linton.

Police were called to the crash just before 4pm but no-one was injured.

Matt Riches, Suffolk County Council's head of winter maintenance, said: "I'd like to thank Suffolk's farmers and our gritting teams for their tireless work over a difficult 48 hours."

More snow was forecast to fall across the east of England tonight.

'Ham-fisted' burglar jailed

A MAN who committed a 'ham-fisted' burglary under the influence of drink and drugs has been jailed by magistrates.

Kevin Forrester, 33, booked a taxi in his own name to take away thousands of pounds worth of electrical goods he had stolen from a garden shed.

He called accomplice Robert Scullion, 28, to help him and they loaded the items - worth about £8,000 - from a shopping trolley, then into the taxi and to the other man's home. Soon afterwards the police arrived and arrested them.

Bury St Edmunds magistrates sentenced Forrester, of Glemsford Place, Haverhill, to 18 weeks' imprisonment after he had admitted the offence at an earlier hearing. Scullion, of Montford Court, Haverhill, was given an 18-month community order with a supervision requirement as well as a condition that he attend a thinking skills programme. He was also ordered to pay £700 compensation and £85 costs.

Ros Keppleman, prosecuting, told magistrates that the victim reported to police that a large amount of computer and musical equipment had been stolen from a building in his garden between 8am and 10am on January 11.

After receiving information, police went to Scullion's home at Montford Court, where they found both men and all the stolen property. Damage to the value of £1,400 was caused to the door and lock on the shed, a CCTV system and a speaker stand.

Lyndon Davies, for Forrester, said his client accepted that he had been the instigator of the offence, but had very little recollection of it, after taking prescribed anti-psychotic medication and alcohol.

Malcolm Plummer, for Scullion, said his client, who suffered from depression and drug problems, had been destitute at the time of the offence as he was not receiving any benefits at the time.

He said: "You could not make it up, it was so ham-fisted and unsophisticated. It smacks of desperation and the temptation was just too great for him."

Chairman of the magistrates Susan Hughes told Forrester: "We believe this offence passes the custody threshold and if was committed while you were already on a community order."

"You have a previous history of burglary and served a four-month prison sentence prior to this for breaching a suspended sentence. The aggravating features are the damage that you caused and the fact that you were under the influence of drugs and alcohol."

MP's delight as apprenticeships up by more than double

MP Matthew Hancock has welcomed news that the number of apprenticeships in West Suffolk has more than doubled.

Marking National

Apprenticeship Week, Mr Hancock congratulated the 270 people who were part of the 58 per cent increase last year.

He said: "Apprenticeships allow people to earn and learn at the same time, while significantly increasing their potential future earnings."

"But the benefits go wider than that - every £1 spent on an apprenticeship returns an estimated benefit of £18 to the economy."

Parliament backs Hancock's bill on betting loophole

MP Matthew Hancock secured the unanimous support of Parliament to bring in a bill to close a loophole for gamblers.

The bill, which was debated on Tuesday, is designed to speed up the process of closing the tax loophole which allows bookmakers to avoid UK taxes and Levy contributions by basing their online businesses offshore.

This means that 18 of the 20 largest bookmakers currently avoid paying £300m of UK taxes and tens of millions in Horseracing Levy contributions.

Mr Hancock, left, who represents West Suffolk, is pushing to close this loophole to guarantee a sustainable future for horseracing, which has suffered a sharp decline in funding from the Levy, partly because bookmakers have moved offshore in recent years.

He said: "I have always maintained that there is widespread support for this change. The fact that my bill has passed unanimously demonstrates this support is cross-party and widespread."

"I hope that this positive result will lead to the Government implementing the proposed 'point of consumption' licensing regulation as soon as possible."

Castle and country park could be sold

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A HISTORIC castle ruin and the surrounding country park could be sold off.

Residents, businesses and community groups are being invited to get involved and have their say on the future of Clare Castle Country Park. Until February 24, local people will be able to submit their views and ideas to be considered by Suffolk County Council.

Since November 2010, the county council has been looking to transfer the ownership and running of the park to a community or local organisation. A steering group, with representatives from Clare Parish Council, Suffolk County Council, St Edmundsbury Borough Council, the National Trust, English Heritage, Clare Business Society and the Railway Society and the Friends of Clare Country Park, has developed three options for the future of the park. These are:

- St Edmundsbury Borough Council to take on the management of the park from the county council for a limited period of time, while the county council retains responsibility for buildings and castle remains. The borough council will then take on the ownership for the whole park once a sustainable use for the buildings is established.

- St Edmundsbury Borough

Council to take on the management of the park from the county council and work with a community group to enable it to take over the running of the park in the longer term.

- The community takes on the running and ownership of the park directly from the county council.

There will be display boards at the visitor centre on the Clare Castle Country Park site until Wednesday, February 15.

Cllr Judy Terry, Suffolk County Council's portfolio holder for the greenest county, said: "Often local solutions are more innovative and better able to meet local needs."

"As a community or individual, you may have many ideas as to how the park could be run differently in the future and we want to hear these ideas."

"It's important to me that these assets remain available to the community – and we will continue to be flexible with our approach to ensure that this can happen."

"We are committed to the park's long-term future and are determined to ensure the park retains its rich and valuable heritage and remains a place that everyone can enjoy."

Opinions and ideas can be expressed by filling out a questionnaire, available at the exhibition, emailing countryside@suffolk.gov.uk, phoning 01473 264786 or visiting www.suffolk.gov.uk/consultations. The deadline for responses is Friday, February 24.

PLUS a fantastic goodie bag!

FOR more than 35 years, Kermit the Frog, Miss Piggy and their fun-loving friends have been firmly engrained in our rose-tinted childhood memories with their slapstick routines and song and dance numbers.

The popularity of Jim Henson's creations has never waned, and now director James Bobin has expertly tapped into that nostalgia with new film The Muppets (U, 109 mins), a glorious throwback to the days of yore that sees the colourful critters facing an uncertain future in a world of technological advances and fleeting celebrity.

And the Weekly News has teamed up with Haverhill's Cineworld to offer you the chance to win a family ticket for four to see the film – PLUS a fantastic Muppets goodie bag boasting a Kermit cushion, a Miss Piggy cushion, a stationery set and a folder.

All you have to do is answer the following question:

Who created the Muppets?

- A) Jim Henson
- B) Jim Benson
- C) Tim Henman

Movie: the gang back together in The Muppets and right, the prizes up for grabs.

To enter, send your answer with your name, address and a daytime contact number to Haverhill Weekly News, 4 Queen Street, Haverhill, Suffolk, CB9 9EF or email editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk.

Closing date is Wednesday, February 15. Usual Cambridge Newspapers terms and conditions apply.

Machine gun arrest drama

A MAN was arrested after police called in the bomb squad to seize machine guns from a home in Haverhill.

The 48-year-old was taken into custody on suspicion of possessing prohibited firearms after police swooped on an address in Bramble Close on Monday and recovered a number of weapons and ammunition. Officers from Suffolk Police acted after the man visited Haverhill police station at the weekend to report an incident and allegedly made threats to harm a third party. He claimed he was a firearms licence holder and as a precaution officers visited the man's home to seize weapons, where they found a number that appeared not to be covered by the licence as well as those that were legitimately held. The 48-year-old man was today in custody at Bury St Edmunds Police Investigation Centre, where he will be interviewed by officers.

Man accused of burglary

A MAN accused of aggravated burglary has been remanded in custody. Lee Holland, 29, of Wellington Terrace, Haverhill, was charged after being detained by police in the town on January 19. It is alleged that Holland had attempted to burgle a house in Clarendon Road, Haverhill. Holland appeared last Thursday at Ipswich Crown Court. He is next due to appear in court on April 4 for a plea and case management hearing.

Look back at family past

LEARN about how to track down your family history at a talk this evening. Valerie Phillips will lead the discussion using software Family Tree Maker to explain how people can discover their ancestry. The event will be held at the Old Independent Church Hall in Haverhill at 7.30pm. For more information email derek@derekwright.co.uk or phone (01440) 708392.

Deputy mayor bushes up to boost heart funds

HAVERHILL'S deputy mayor got busy with a paintbrush to help paint his town red and boost a heart charity.

Cllr Patrick Hanlon went along to the British Heart Foundation shop in the High Street to launch National Heart Month for the nation's heart charity.

Cllr Hanlon joined local cardiac patients, volunteers and big-hearted fundraisers for the British Heart Foundation to paint red giant letters spelling out Haverhill.

During this month, Haverhill residents are being challenged to join in the charity's Red for Heart fundraising campaign. They can put on their own red-themed fundraising event this February – by baking red cakes and their heart out, a quiz with red questions, or even stop seeing red with a swear box around the home office. They can also encourage schools, colleges or workplaces to join in on National Wear Red Day on Friday, February 24.

Alex Mayer, fundraising manager for the British Heart Foundation in Suffolk, said: "Sadly, heart disease remains Britain's biggest killer and the British Heart Foundation needs your help to raise vital funds."

"I know we can count on Haverhill residents to wear their heart on their sleeves and help raise crucial funds to tackle heart disease.

"Heart disease can affect anyone, old or young so please join us this February to raise vital cash to fund life-saving research and equipment and you will have our heartfelt thanks."

To find out more and order a free Red for Heart fundraising kit, visit www.bhf.org.uk/red or phone (01223) 862695.

Council bosses stay put

CHIEF executives of two district councils have decided not to apply for a newly-created post to cover both authorities.

A joint statement by the chief executives, David Burnip, of Forest Heath, and Geoff Rivers, of St Edmundsbury, said: "Sharing services at all levels is essential for both councils because the financial pressures are just too great for either to sustain alone."

"Forest Heath and St Edmundsbury are at a watershed and we have decided that it is in the best interests of both organisations if they have the opportunity to appoint a new chief executive."

"There are interesting times ahead for councillors and staff and our very best wishes go to whoever will take up this challenging role of bringing the councils that we know so well closer together."

An appointment to the post is due to be confirmed by meetings of both councils next Wednesday.

Help is at hand for town's most needy

SOME of the most needy people in Haverhill are being given a rare opportunity to make drastic changes in their life with the help of an expanding charity.

Workwise, based in Bury St Edmunds, is now offering the innovative social enterprise Goals programme to local people.

The charity usually focuses on supporting those with mental health issues, but is now offering the programme to all members of society.

Goals UK is a social enterprise and a leading life skills training provider, from which more than 100,000 people nationally have now benefited, designed to help people get more out of life.

During the free programme, participants will attend workshops and draw up personal action plans to find employment, improve their careers, get a better education and to achieve their personal hopes and aspirations.

The workshops will be held at community centres in and around Haverhill.

Valerie Beresford, Workwise chief executive, said: "The Goals programme is a powerful catalyst that speeds up the process of change in people's lives. The programme is not just a quick fix – it provides people with the basic tools to take charge of their life."

"We are one of only a few organisations in Suffolk offering the programme and while it is open to everyone, we are particularly keen to attract people from deprived backgrounds – including those who have been out of work for a long time, those for poor backgrounds and adults with literacy problems who may not have previously had the opportunity to learn the life and development skills on offer with Goals.

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

"The programme is already running in parts of Ipswich, Bury St Edmunds and the Suffolk coastal area, but we are delighted to now be able to offer the service in Haverhill as well."

People can refer themselves to the Goals programme or be referred via the Job Centre. Workwise is also working in partnership with other organisations, such as the Havebury Housing Association, to offer the programme to its residents.

The charity is looking at expanding the services it offers to a wider range of people and is also looking at a number of sites in Suffolk, Norfolk and Cambridgeshire to set up work based training centres similar to those it has in Bury St Edmunds.

Those needing further advice on the Goals Programme or Workwise can phone 01284 755261 or email at admin@workwisesuffolk.org.uk.

Further information is also available on the website www.workwisesuffolk.org.uk.

Congratulations Tom, Tom, Tom and Tim

TWO Toms shared the honours as a band's most improved players – and a third was bandsperson of the year.

Haverhill Silver Band held its annual dinner and among recipients of the annual awards were trombonist Tom Curtis and Tomos Morgan. They shared the trophy for the most improved player in 2011. Another Tom, Tom Walker, was given the Bandsperson of the Year trophy and Tim Pannell player of the year.

All of these stars of your local brass band can be heard at Haverhill Arts Centre on Sunday, February 19 at 7.30pm, along with the rest of the band.

The band will share the concert with a guest brass quintet, TUBE.

The concert will be a mixture of light and classical music. Tickets are available from the Arts Centre box office on (01440) 714140.

I can't use the park anymore

Sir, I write in response to G Evans's letter ("I wish all dogs were on leads", Weekly News, February 2). I agree with everything that was written.

I also no longer walk in East Town Park because so many of the dogs are allowed to run free without their leads. It's so unfair to the rest of us more responsible dog owners. I now have to stick to walking in the streets but even their owners sometimes allow their dogs to walk without leads. I get fed up with being told "he's okay, don't worry". It's pathetic – it only takes a loud noise to spook their dog and then all sorts of nasty things could happen. I have had two nasty incidents in the streets and these irresponsible people make me really cross.

When anything really bad happens it's always the dog that gets blamed and has to be put down, when it really is the fault of the owners because they haven't trained their dogs properly. Yes, we are very lucky to have so many fields close at hand so why do the owners who feel their dogs need to run without a lead not stick to using the fields so that the rest of us can safely use the parks and footpaths?

My dog is a medium-sized terrier and I walk him for an hour in the morning and 30 minutes in the afternoon. I wonder whether the people who let their dogs run free prefer to do so because it means less walking for them?

Something else I have noticed recently is the number of people who have taken to riding their bikes on the footpaths. Did I miss something somewhere along the line making it okay to use the footpaths? I always understood that cyclists were supposed to use the roads?

Dogs on leads? It's poppycock

Sir, I would like to reply to G Evans's letter ("I wish all dogs were on leads", Weekly News, February 2) about all dogs being on leads. What absolute poppycock. Dogs need to be off the lead to run around, play ball and socialise with other dogs. As long as the owner is attentive it is unnecessary for the dog to be attached to him or her all the time. To do this just shows owners have no understanding of their dogs.

Owners who feel the need to restrict their dogs like this are conveying their fear and nervousness to the dog. It is a very sad state of affairs if a dog always has to be on a lead, condemned to a life of restriction because the owner has no other way of controlling or understanding the animal.

Dogs are pack animals and pose no threat if they are well educated and socialised.

I would be very sad to lose the freedom of East Town Park, as would other dog owners who frequent it on a daily basis. My dog and I have enjoyed many a happy time in the park with other dog owners. We should not be designated certain areas to walk our dogs. We should be able to interact together – dogs and

■ THIS week's picture, taken from our archives, shows some sort of presentation event taking place. Do you recognise anyone in the picture or know what the event was? Do you know where and when it was taken? Send your answers to: Memories, Haverhill Weekly News, 4 Queen Street, Haverhill, CB9 9EF by Tuesday morning, or email editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk.

I suggest you stick to streets

Sir, G Evans makes me so cross. I am a responsible dog owner of more than 30 years and I currently only have two as my border collie, Bess, died suddenly January 18. Just because I enjoy seeing my dogs meander around off-lead (they're too old to run) does not mean I don't pick up their poo – in fact I'm always sporting a full bag! I even pick up the cats' poo when they accompany me and the dogs.

If you need a lesson on how its done you can always come with me on a walk, although you probably wouldn't enjoy it because I meet friends who also allow their dogs off lead.

If you don't want your dog to mix with others then I suggest you stick to walking around the streets where it is a legal requirement for a dog to be on a lead. Its often the lack of socialisation that can be the cause of a lot of incidences regarding dogs. I also work at the Willow Tree Animal Sanctuary and see first hand what problems are around.

Personally I would like to see "dog parks" introduced in the UK, where dogs have a safe and fully enclosed area to run and socialise in. Stop trying to spoil people's enjoyment of their pets – there are enough anti-dog people doing that already.

For advice, talk to your mums

Sir, I read your article ("Mums-to-be hit as classes axed", Weekly News, February 2) with despair. Once again, people expect everyone else to cover the cost of their choices. These mothers are having children and good luck to them. The NHS should ensure a safe birth. But antenatal classes?

This is exactly the sort of unnecessary spending that can be cut. Surely these women have mothers they can ask for advice, or friends with children.

Mankind has managed to get this far, mostly without antenatal classes and, frankly, my wife, like her friends, found them to be a waste of time. So come on ladies – speak to your mothers and your friends. They can really help and it will not cost the rest of us a penny.

Craft fair is daughter's thank-you to hospice

A CRAFT fair raised £700 for a hospice in memory of a Haverhill woman who was cared for before she died of cancer.

Mum of four Vicky Hunt died at St Nicholas Hospice in Bury St Edmunds in 1996 aged just 43 after suffering from a brain tumour.

Her daughter Kelly Woods, 34, from Haverhill, staged the fair on Saturday where residents packed out Haverhill

Arts Centre to browse more than 20 stalls filled with home-made cakes and presents as well as take a chance on a raffle.

Kelly told the Weekly News: "It was a great success."

"I was only 17 or so when my mum died and I thought this is the year I finally give something back to the hospice."

"Everyone had a lovely time – it was fantastic."

Looking to net sponsors

DIG deep and help support a charity football match in Haverhill.

In September, a match between ex-footballers and celebrities will be staged at the New Croft home of Haverhill Rovers FC in aid of Help for Heroes followed by an evening of entertainment at the Rose and Crown Hotel. But organiser Malcolm Thompson is looking for generous sponsors to come forward.

Record for green awards

A RECORD-breaking number of entries have been received this year for Suffolk's prestigious Creating the Greenest County awards.

Many of the county's schools, businesses and communities have contributed more than 100 projects, organisations and individuals as contenders for the 'Green Oscars', run by Suffolk County Council. The awards ceremony, now in its fifth year of promoting sustainability, will be held on March 22.

MP braves the cold to taste life on patrol with pastors

PASTORS who help keep the streets of Haverhill safe with their night-time patrols were joined by MP Mathew Hancock.

The representative for West Suffolk stepped out in -2C weather with the pioneering group of ministers who aim to help people hit by binge-drinking and violence.

Haverhill became the eighth town in Suffolk to introduce town pastors when they began their patrols in August last year. The group of Christians take their members from every church in the Haverhill district and are all first-aid trained as well as carrying small medical kits.

Andrew Payne, 44, a pioneer minister at St Mary's Church, in Haverhill, said the politician was "impressed" by the warm welcome the group received during their tour of the town last Friday.

He said: "It was fairly quiet because it was so cold but he was impressed by how we related to people and how they gave us a positive response."

"We aim to be out there on Friday and Saturday nights and are there to support those who may be in trouble."

"We are extra eyes and ears and we are friendly and step in if people are having a bit of an argument or too much to drink."

He continued: "It is a good thing because it aims to reduces crime and we are able to be a support for people and make sure people have a safe night out."

Credit/Debit Cards Taken.

FEBRUARY is a great time to show your partner how special they are, and there are a million different ways to do this.

Here are some top tips to let them know how much you appreciate them.

1. GET CREATIVE

A hand made card or present is a sure-fire way to prove you care.

It's easy to make a personal card, using a collage of photos of the two of you or your children, or just cutting out images of their favourite things from magazines.

In terms of presents, you could bake a cake, get your kids to paint something and have it nicely framed, or make a scrap book of memories including cinema tickets or holiday snaps. If you haven't got the time, you can always write a voucher for 100 kisses or a back rub.

2. COMMIT

Most people assume commitment only comes in moving in together, getting married or raising children.

In fact, there are many different levels of commitment, and one of the most precious is putting aside windows of time for one another. So fix a regular 'us' night, where you get a babysitter and go for a meal, a long walk or even just claim the sofa as your own for a few hours, pour some wine and watch a film.

3. SHARE YOUR INTERESTS

It can be easy to feel like you're living separate lives from your partner, with both of you enjoying your own hobbies separately.

While there's no need to live in one another's pockets, sometimes sharing an existing hobby, or even better, taking up a new one together can feel wonderfully intimate. Enrol on an art course, take up dancing, or learn a new language – you'll not only spend more time together, but you'll have plenty to talk about afterwards. If you can't spare the time, just read aloud to each other from a novel before bed.

4. REMEMBER

Reminisce about when you first met. What were you wearing? What did you talk about? Where did you go? How did you both feel?

You might discover all sorts of things that your partner has never told you before, and you in turn can tell them about the butterflies in your stomach. You can reflect on how far you've come as a couple too.

5. SMALL ACTS OF KINDNESS

It doesn't all have to be red roses and diamonds, sometimes it's the little things which mean the most.

Wake up five minutes earlier than normal to bring your partner tea in bed on Valentine's Day, get done whatever odd jobs they've been wanting you to finish, run them a bath, or just make an extra effort to ask them questions about their day before launching into your own stories.

These are the things which can last long into a marriage, and arguably are the most romantic of all gestures.

I've lost my sight, but I can still see a future

JOSIE Atherton is a busy mum to two-year-old Charlie who is chasing his new kitten, Bruno, around the lounge. She makes me a cup of coffee and helps Charlie peel a banana before switching on the television to find CBBC.

It's only at this point, when Josie steps very close to the television screen to read the channel, that anyone might suspect she is visually impaired.

"I still mask it quite a lot," says Josie, who is 21. "Especially when I meet new people. They don't realise I have a problem because I look at them as they speak and they think I am making eye contact."

Josie does this convincingly and acknowledges that having lived most of her life as a sighted person she will automatically look towards someone as they speak, although she does not see them well.

"I can see your shape and your hair and where your eyes are but not your mouth," she explains. I ask her if she can see my chunky necklace, which she can't. I'm sitting less than two metres away.

"My eyes started to feel funny in April 2010 and I needed to blink a lot and my friend Sam suggested I make an appointment with the optician. I thought nothing of it until the optician asked me to cover my left eye and read what I could see on the screen. It was blank, so I said nothing. But when I took my hand away from my eye there was a big letter E on the screen. I mean a massive letter. And my heart just went."

Why young mum Josie hasn't given up her dream of teaching despite acute loss of vision. Lisa Millard reports.

Josie could hear the panic in the voices of the staff at the optician and they asked if there was a history of sight problems in her family.

"There is, but the condition is so rare that it never felt like an issue. I went to Hinchbrook Hospital two days after visiting the optician and was then referred to Addenbrooke's for more tests. But I had a gut feeling. Everyone around me was staying positive, but I knew I had it."

A diagnosis of Leber's hereditary optic neuropathy (LHON), a degenerative condition leading to acute loss of central vision, confirmed Josie's fears.

Doctors told Josie it may take two years before her other eye was affected but it only took a couple of months. Currently, there is no treatment for LHON. "My mum has it but because the condition is so rare I never worried about it. I have three older sisters and they are all fine. Nobody can confirm if Charlie will get it," Josie says, very quietly.

When Josie started to lose her sight, Charlie was only four months

"It was difficult preparing bottles but I wanted to do it. I would often burn myself because it was hard to read the measurement lines on the side of the bottle."

Life has certainly changed for Josie, who lives in St Ives, and day-to-day activities can be challenging.

"I don't always know when I need to take my card out of the machine at the till and I don't like having to get a magnifying glass out. It's frustrating. Buses can be a problem, too. If I can't read what the destination is on the front I will ask the driver if the bus is going to St Ives and they will often just say 'Can't you read?' I used to be a very confident person but this really did knock me back."

When Annette Chalkson from Cam Sight contacted Josie to invite her to attend the emotional support workshops run by the organisation, Josie was having none of it. "I just said 'No'. I was in denial. I didn't want to admit I might need support. But six months later I was on the phone to Annette and just burst into tears. I realised I should give it all a go."

Josie joined the group meetings where she met regularly with three other people who had all experienced sight loss.

"It completely changed me for the better. There was a lady who was 82 who had cancer as well as coping with sight loss. That really got to me. And there was a man in his 30s who spoke about his condition in such a matter-of-fact way. He was terminally ill. He might live for 20 years or he might live for two, but he had so much courage and confidence. I had to leave the room at that point. I just broke down and felt such a rush of selfishness. It put everything in perspective and I knew what I needed was to accept what was happening."

"I told my family and close friends all about it and they could see a change in me from the first session. I'm really glad I did it."

During the course, Josie made a discovery that helped someone else. "I've been texting since I was 11 and, when I couldn't read texts any more, I found it very frustrating. I can touch type to send texts but receiving them was difficult."

"Then one day, by accident, I discovered there is a button to enlarge the text. At the next group meeting I commented to one of the men that he had the same phone as me and he said that he liked it but the font was too small to read texts. I got his phone and showed him how to make it bigger and he was so happy and said he would be texting everyone once he got home. It seems the tiniest thing, but it makes such a lot of difference."

I ask Josie if Cam Sight will be providing further support in the future. "Actually, I want to give something back to them now. I hope to do a parachute jump and raise quite a lot of money and split it between Cam Sight and LHON. And I might be helping Cam Sight with talks in schools to help raise more awareness of visual impairment."

Josie has a qualification in childcare and had hoped to work in a local nursery but, after her diagnosis, her enquiries were met by a negative response.

"I was told I might never work with children again, which really knocked me back. But a few days ago I went into a pre-school and I hope to start volunteering there soon. I know that if I hadn't lost my sight I would be working by now."

Josie admits there have been days when she has been very down. "That was the hardest time and not being able to read Charlie a story was devastating. But my best friend Sam is amazing and is always there for me."

"I always hoped to be a primary school teacher but when I lost my sight I thought 'That's it then'. I now know that if I want to do it enough, I will make it happen. If I have it in me, I will do it."

Cam Sight: a brief history

THE first meeting of Cam Sight took place on October 28, 1912, at St Andrew's Parish Room, Cambridge. Two local ladies from well-known families, Mrs Stace and Mrs Lilley (of the Eaden Lilley family), at the suggestion of a blind friend, Miss Chandler, offered to organise meetings for blind people to discuss their problems and arrange recreational activities.

The weekly meetings became known as the Friday Class and began with a half-hour reading of Dickens or similar authors, followed by learning practical skills, entertainment and tea. The aim was to help make blind people self-reliant, as well as provide support, but not show pity.

Funds were provided by founders and friends and came from sales of work by members.

In 1915, a Blind Workers Shop opened in Emmanuel Street, transferring to Regent Street in 1938, finally closing in 1982.

The only state help for the blind came from the Education Act of 1893, providing education for children. In 1919, Mrs Stace employed a home teacher who visited all blind people in the area once a fortnight.

The Blind Persons Act of 1920 placed responsibility on the local authority, assisted by national and regional voluntary agencies. It was under this Act that the Cambridge Society for the Blind was registered, changing to the Cambridgeshire Society for the Blind later that year.

The society looked after 45 blind evacuee children during the war until 1945 when there were 252 visually impaired people on the register.

In 1947, the council took over most of the activities, but the society retained the shop, continued the Friday Club and bought the leasehold on Blantyre in Glisson Road to create a residential home for six blind men and 12 blind women, which closed in 1992.

In 1985, Cam Sight moved to Coles Lane in Oakington and then to its current premises in Green End Road, Chesterton, in 1996. The charity currently supports more than 2,000 visually impaired people and has a resources centre in Chatteris, which was opened in 2009

Local statistics

There are 14,000 people registered with some form of visual impairment in Cambridgeshire.

The total population affected by eye health conditions from district to district is as follows:

Huntingdonshire – 3,445
Cambridge City – 2,653
South Cambs – 3,306
East Cambs – 1,986
Fenland – 2,617

We will push for a street lights review

WE always hear about the "unforeseen consequences", but nobody ever admits to responsibility for the foreseen consequences, or takes action to reduce their effect.

We were warned some time ago that a by-product of the recession would be an increase in crime; fortunately in Haverhill we have been spared the worst of this so far, but recently there has been an increase in burglaries following the decision to switch off the street lights.

More importantly the town council heard recently that the ability of the police to stage night-time surveillance to catch burglars was affected by the lack of street lighting. We were promised a review of the street lighting decision once the town had been dark – that time has come and we will be pressing for a review.

Again, the effects of the recession, and benefit reductions, continue to affect a growing number of our community. Luckily in Haverhill, the "Big Society" in the form of the

by Cllr Maureen Byrne, mayor of Haverhill

local voluntary organisation REACH is coming to the aid of a growing number of innocent victims. The town council heard how the numbers asking for support from REACH's food bank and furniture bank are growing, and the town council agreed to fund the work of REACH by a further £5,000.

This work is vital to our community, yet there are those who would seek to withdraw that meagre support. Shame on them.

We hear about the need to ensure high-speed broadband links if we are to attract new industry, and retain existing commerce, to the town. Last week the borough council's Haverhill Area Working Party heard that while BT had taken the commercial decision to upgrade the line speed for most residential properties in Haverhill, they were not doing the same for the industrial areas. So while we can now all watch television repeats on our computers without loss of quality, our businesses must make do with a lower-speed internet connection. What was the borough council's working party response? Merely to "note" the information. Not to complain on behalf of the business sector, not to campaign for the industrial areas to be included. It's a good job the town council wants to see the town benefit, and for employment opportunities to be created by higher broadband speeds.

A number of people have asked me about the town council's "Expression of Interest" in managing Place Court – chief of their concerns was the financial aspect.

We submitted our "Expression of Interest" ahead of that section of the Localism Act 2011 becoming enacted – when it is it enables organisations, such as the town council, to express and interest in managing a service provided by a principal authority. Although the Act is less clear on this aspect the intention is that the current funds for providing the service would transfer to the new organisation, the belief being that a local organisation would be able to reduce central management costs.

The requirement of the Act, when enacted, is for the principal authority to "consider" any expression of interest.

And finally, there is an online petition to save the Crown Health Centre – <http://epetitions.direct.gov.uk/petitions/26434>.

If you don't have access to the internet you can use one of the laptops in the Arts Centre Bistro.

Firms urged to help in 2031 vision

AN update on how a council's vision to develop Haverhill is progressing will be given by one of its officers next week.

Guest speaker Chris Rand, principal planning policy officer, planning and economic development services, St Edmundsbury Borough Council, is returning a year on to the bestofhaverhill group to provide an update to the local business community on the Haverhill Masterplan – the Haverhill Vision 2031.

At the meeting, to be held next Thursday at 10am at the Days Inn, Haverhill, Mr Rand will talk about how the council has progressed with the project and provide details on the latest phase of consultation, which starts on March 1. The borough council is keen for local businesses to engage with the Haverhill Vision 2031 and Mr Rand will explain the different ways they can get involved.

Elaine Carr, owner of thebestofhaverhill said: "2031 seems so far away but I think it is imperative that we as business owners play our part in shaping the future of the town. I encourage businesses to join us on February 16 and play their part in shaping the Haverhill of the future."

To attend the free event, call Elaine Carr on 01440 710 158 or email haverhill@thebestof.co.uk by Monday.

Town facing shops battle

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

RESIDENTS do more than half of their non-food shopping outside their home town, an independent retail study has revealed.

A recent survey commissioned by St Edmundsbury Borough Council found that people travelled to Cambridge and other places for nearly 60 per cent of their spending on clothes, shoes, furniture and household goods.

It identified the challenge for Haverhill over the next 10 years was to make the town more attractive to shoppers so that fewer people spend their money in larger towns.

The study was carried out by Drivers Jonas Deloitte in Haverhill and Bury St Edmunds, to help planners allow for the right kind of retail growth until 2021, and its findings reported to the Haverhill Area Working Party and the council's Sustainable Development Working Party.

The shopper's survey provided 1,095 responses, which were analysed by Kent Business School.

They concluded that the multi-million investment in the leisure centre area of the town, including the new cinema, restaurants and the opening of a new supermarket had made a 'major positive impact' on the town centre.

But in the coming years, the benefits of this major new development needed to be spread to the main shopping area.

Bright lights: festive shoppers pack Haverhill, but an independent report identified challenges for the town over the next 10 years.

Their report said: "Loss of the Co-op store from retail use is unfortunate, because the premises lie in a strategic position between the new commercial areas in the east and the primary shopping area."

"The former Co-Op premises/Jubilee Walk car parks/bus station should be the priority area within which to encourage new investment and development that would assist the vitality and viability of the core shopping area."

"We understand the council is the freehold owner of land in this area and therefore should have the opportunity to bring this about."

"The attraction of appropriate forms of new retail investment to this area could have a major positive impact on the town centre."

"Reuse of the Chauntry Mills site might also in part include some retail uses that would be beneficial, because of the proximity to the High Street/Market Hill frontages."

It was recommended that a formal review of the current retail offer be undertaken to identify what is available in the town and what is missing and how can those gaps be addressed.

The report concluded "Haverhill needs to attract more shops selling different products and needs to be very different to Cambridge or Bury St Edmunds. The shopper's voice is critically important and needs to be listened to on a systematic and regular basis."

A longer-term consideration was the development of a loyalty programme for regular visitors, offering targeted incentives for shoppers to visit more frequently.

Trouble in the classroom

MOGADISHU, the debut play by former schoolteacher Vivienne Franzman, sets out on national tour this month, and is playing at the Cambridge Arts Theatre until Saturday.

Set in a contemporary East End secondary school, the play – which was installed at the Lyric Theatre in Hammersmith last spring – raises questions of justice, race and youth and has been hailed an “outstanding debut” by The Daily Telegraph.

When black student Jason pushes white secondary school teacher Amanda to the ground, she decides not to report him as she knows exclusion could condemn him to a future as troubled as his past. Yet victim becomes perpetrator when the tables are turned and Jason decides to protect himself by spinning a story of his own. With the truth becoming less clear and more dangerous by the day, it isn't long before careers, relationships and even lives are under threat.

Described by one critic as “Grange Hill meets The Crucible”, Mogadishu offers a hard-hitting portrait of modern society, as Franzman explains: “It’s a contemporary play about contemporary issues.”

“It’s very much of its time – I don’t think it would be relevant 15 years ago and I don’t know if it’ll be relevant in 15 years’ time: it’s kind of encapsulating a moment.”

Franzman worked as a drama teacher in East London for 13 years before taking up her pen as a playwright, and many of her own experiences and observations have made their way into her play.

“The core of it, what happens to the teacher, is not my experience – it was actually based on a friend of mine – though a lot of the dialogue is taken from my experience of teaching in London. In the last few years of teaching I saw the rise of allegations against teachers – false allegations, I might add.

“So I thought that was an interesting area to look at and an interesting development, socially and within education as well.”

Franzman wrote the play in 2008 as an entry for the Bruntwood Playwriting Competition – which it won, along with three other works – then went on to add the George Devine Award to her cabinet in 2010. The play was taken up by the Lyric in 2011.

“It was amazing to see it performed for the first time; I was still teaching then so it was like two worlds colliding – teaching was my day job and writing was something I’d thought about for so long. It was really amazing. And it’s been really fun working on it because the young people have got so much life.

“I’ve had a few old students contact me and I bumped into some at the Lyric as well while we were there and the response has always been really positive.”

What does she think about the “Grange Hill meets The Crucible” tag?

“I don’t know about that. Grange Hill makes it feel a bit softer – The Crucible bit is harder I suppose, but it’s got quite a hard edge to it, it’s very urban.”

What does she hope audiences will take away from it? Does it have a message?

“I don’t have a message. I just raise things and people can think what they want to think about it.”

■ Mogadishu, Cambridge Arts Theatre, until Saturday at 7.45pm. Contact (01223) 503333 / www.cambridgeartstheatre.com.

THE Mersey Makers will be with us tomorrow at 8pm to celebrate the sound of the 1960s. Tickets are going fast so call the box office on 01440 714140 for availability.

If you are up for it, the Kaiser Monkey Killers will be here on Saturday from 8pm. Gritty and loud, with all live music and no backing tracks, the KMKs deliver the best from the Arctic Monkeys and The Kaiser Chiefs, with a killer version of The Killers' Mr Brightside (of course), plus loads more indie favourites.

Blunderbus Theatre make a welcome return on Wednesday, February 15 at 2pm with The Owl Who Was Afraid of the Dark. This funny, gentle and reassuring tale is based on the classic children's book by Jill Tomlinson, and is written especially for youngsters aged 3-7 (and grown-ups who sleep with the light on). With an irresistible blend of live music, puppetry and storytelling, this will cheer up the half-term holidays – it's going to be a hoot!

Dates for your diary include Total Stone Roses and Oaysis, a tribute to two iconic 1990s' bands, on Friday, February 24 at 8.30pm (no unaccompanied under-14s). An Instinct for Kindness, on Saturday, February 25, is the moving, bittersweet tale of Chris Lerner, who accompanied his chronically ill ex-wife to Switzerland's Dignitas clinic.

And Eastern Angles' Private Resistance on Wednesday, February 29 at 8pm, is the ultimate 'what-if' scenario and a story of the bonds created and destroyed by war.

A tale of pilgrims' progress

WHO among us, except a handful of very dedicated English students, can honestly say they've got through all of Chaucer's The Canterbury Tales? If you're hoping to broaden your literary horizons for 2012, The ADC Theatre may have the answer. This week the

Cambridge University Amateur Dramatic Club will be bringing to life this collection of medieval morality tales using music, puppets, physical theatre and even a spot of opera. The Canterbury Tales range from the pious to the potty-mouthed. Told to while away the hours during pilgrimages to Canterbury to visit the shrine of St Thomas Becket, they were written by Chaucer, making them among the first examples of recorded prose in the English language. Don't be surprised to find that pilgrims from the 14th century weren't all that different from us! ■ The Canterbury Tales, ADC Theatre, until Saturday at 7.45pm. Tickets are from £8 (£6 concessions). Contact (01223) 300085 / www.adc-theatre.com.

A fistful of melodies

THE magnificent five are preparing to ride into the Cambridge Corn Exchange on Sunday for a musical showdown that will conjure up the scorching heat of the Wild West, the cold eyes of a killer, the click of a cocked gun and the jangle of spurs.

Armed with more than 100 instruments and excellent comic timing, the Spaghetti Western Orchestra is to stage a musical stand-off performing a selection of Ennio Morricone classics from the movies that made Clint Eastwood a star.

■ The Spaghetti Western Orchestra, Cambridge Corn Exchange, Sunday, February 12, 7.30pm. Tickets £25, £20 and £15. Contact (01223) 357851 / www.cornex.co.uk.

Ballet an assault on the emotions

GISELLE is the most poignant of all classical ballets, combining powerful emotions and visual splendour in a heart-rending tale of love, treachery and forgiveness from beyond the grave.

The story of Giselle and her aristocratic but duplicitous lover Albrecht is set to a glorious score and brought to life by the magnificent costumes and virtuoso performances of the Russian State Ballet of Siberia.

■ Giselle, Cambridge Corn Exchange, Monday, February 13, 7.30pm. Tickets £32.50, £28.50, £22.50 (under-16s any seat £15). Contact (01223) 357851 / www.cornex.co.uk.

The big film

THE WOMAN IN BLACK
certificate 12A, 95m

LESS is certainly more in this chilling film version of the celebrated novel by Susan Hill, which has been re-imagined as a television movie, a radio series and a hit stage play in the 30 years since its publication.

Working from a screenplay by Jane Goldman, director James Watkins delivers a cinematic ghost train that plunges the audience into the eerie silence of a haunted house as the film's mutton-chopped hero nervously wanders corridors with a flickering lamp to light the way.

London solicitor Arthur Kipps (Daniel Radcliffe) is haunted by the death of his wife Stella (Sophie Stuckey) during childbirth and he seeks refuge in his love for their three-year-old boy, Joseph (Misha Handley).

His work suffers as a consequence and Arthur's boss Mr Bentley (Roger Allam) makes clear the precariousness of his situation, growling: "We can't carry passengers; we're not a charity." To prove himself, Arthur is despatched to the remote village of Crythin Gifford where he must attend to the papers of Alice Drablow, the recently deceased owner of Eel Marsh House.

The locals, including innkeeper Fisher

(Shaun Dooley) and his wife (Mary Stockley), try to ward him off Arthur, advising him to go home to his son. However, Arthur persists with the help of local landowner Mr Daily (Ciaran Hinds) and glimpses a mysterious woman (Liz White) dressed all in black, who is blamed for the deaths of children in the village.

The Woman In Black opens with a chilling scene of three girls committing suicide by jumping from the window of their attic playroom and continues to unravel until Radcliffe is compelled to speak.

In his first major role since hanging up his wand as Harry Potter, the 22-year-old actor is as wooden as the creaky floorboards in the godforsaken mansion and as soulless as the titular spectre.

Expectations of unspeakable horrors around each darkened corner play havoc with frayed nerves and Watkins orchestrates some nice scares, accompanied by deafening bursts of composer Marco Beltrami's discordant score.

Watkins doesn't reveal too much of his malevolent spirit and a centrepiece sequence in a bog of choking mud leaves us gasping for air along with the characters.

Disappointingly, the denouement errs heavily towards sentiment when much of the rest of the film has been permeated by dread.

Thinking outside the chocolate box...

NOT flowers and chocolates again! Surely the way to a green-fingered person's heart on Valentine's Day is to make the most of the great outdoors, do some spectacular planting and wallow in luxury at the end of a hard day's digging.

There's an abundance of romantic gifts for the gardener, from a simple heart-shaped garden ornament to wonderful hampers of luxurious, sweetly scented organic products to wash away the toil of the day.

Award-winning rose grower David Austin has a stunning container gift rose collection, for instance, which can be ordered to arrive on a specific date.

Each rose arrives in a gift box, decorated with a rose print.

Among the gems in the collection is the St Swithun, a beautiful English climbing rose which produces large, saucer-shaped blooms in a romantic shade of pure pink blush, with a strong myrrh fragrance. The containerised roses come in six-litre pots (£24.95 including standard delivery, www.david.austinroses.com).

by Hannah Stephenson

If your loved one enjoys a romantic day out in the open air, an annual membership to the National Trust is a must. It provides free unlimited visits to all of the 200 Trust gardens across England, Wales and Northern Ireland. Buy gift membership on 0844 800 1895 or at www.nationaltrust.org.uk.

If she's the apple of your eye, buy her a rosy-red Redlove bare root apple tree, excellent for both eating and cooking, which bears red-fleshed fruit that has a beautiful pattern running through it and retains its colour when cooking. Exclusive to Suttons, the tree has unusual, long-lasting, deep pink spring blossom (£24.99, www.suttons.co.uk, phone 0844 922 0606).

Add a touch of sparkle to your relationship – and your garden – with a twinkly red mosaic heart hanger, made with red-coloured glass shards and frost- and weather-resistant.

It's available in different sizes from gardens2you (from £8.99, www.gardens2you.co.uk, phone 01933 624 084).

If you want a more personalised gift, you can name a pack of rose seeds after your loved one which can grow into a rose bush to cherish forever.

Simply name your rose and www.gettingpersonal.co.uk will register the name to the unique pack of rose seeds and personalise the certificate, which you will receive with both your chosen name and the unique seed reference number allocated. It comes presented in a stylish gift tin (£19.99, www.gettingpersonal.co.uk).

If you're looking for a timely gift, check out Gardman's Hamilton Roman numeral clock, with its romantic heart-shaped metal designs. (£24.99, (Gardman, stockists 01406 372 227). With more hearts in mind, this delightful heart-shaped plant holder in brown rustic finish will add a touch of romance to any garden.

It makes an eye-catching feature planted with cascading geraniums or ivies and can be used as a conservatory planter or outside hanging from a tree. (£22.50, www.simplyaddstyle.com)

For someone you think is hot stuff, you might opt for a gift of a chilli plant to grow in a windowsill container, with delicious Belgian chocolates with a kick of hot chilli. (£9.95, www.giftinspiration.com, phone 01458 270 911)

Alternatively, the same company offers more of a pampering gift for gardeners with its organic weekend gift box filled with organic toiletries including bath oil, soap and a votive candle scented with jasmine and geranium with manuka honey (£27.95, www.giftinspiration.com, phone 01458 270 911).

IT MUST BE LOVE: Try giving your loved one a red mosaic heart, top, or a rosy-red bare root apple tree.

ATTRACTING QUALITY TENANTS

PROMOTING YOUR PROPERTY

With a strong regional presence and established reputation, Cheffins is well placed to attract quality tenants for your rental property.

Our marketing and promotional campaigns are highly effective, reaching the widest possible audience amongst prospective tenants. We can also provide expert interior design advice to ensure that your property is shown at its best.

A MAJOR REGIONAL PRESENCE

With offices in Cambridge, Newmarket, Ely, Saffron Walden, St Ives and Haverhill, as well as a base in London, Cheffins provides a personal presence and points of contact right across the region – ideal for reaching new tenants and managing properties on a local basis.

EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

We advertise weekly in the property rental sections of all the major regional newspapers including Cambridge Evening News, Cambridge Property News, Newmarket Weekly News, Ely Weekly News, Saffron Walden Weekly News, St Ives Weekly News and Haverhill Weekly News. The vast majority of these ads are in colour to ensure maximum impact and the best possible presentation of your property.

INTERACTIVE WEBSITE

The internet has undoubtedly become the primary means of searching for rental property and Cheffins' website is one of the most frequently visited sites in the region.

Prospective tenants can view our rental property selection online and, since the site is updated daily, you can be sure that your property reaches a significant market sector within hours of instructing Cheffins.

EMAIL MARKETING

We have a list of email subscribers actively seeking properties to rent. You can be sure that details of your property will reach the appropriate mailboxes as soon as you have approved the rental agreement.

Your CV

When you send your CV off to a potential employer, remember that you won't be the only one. Hundreds of other people could be applying for the job as well.

So what are you going to do to make you stand out from the crowd? Why should an employer take a chance on you instead of someone else?

Your CV is your first real chance to sell yourself to a potential employer. Most employers will scan through a CV in about 30 seconds so you need to grab their attention from the start - and make them want to invite you for an interview.

There are five main areas to consider when writing your CV:

- Make sure your CV looks the part. Your CV should look clean and tidy - don't scrawl it out on a piece of A4 paper. If you haven't got access to a PC or printer, ask a friend or use your local library. Use a good quality paper and steer clear of fancy borders and front covers.
- Watch out for silly spelling and grammar mistakes. They make you look lazy and show employers that you don't really care. It's not difficult to do a spell check on your PC and if you're really stuck then don't just guess, reach for a dictionary. Get a friend to read through your CV for you - a second opinion is always useful.
- Make sure your CV is well organised. When you list your previous jobs, make sure the dates are correct and try not to leave any gaps. If you took time out to go travelling then say so - employers won't mark you down just because you've tried something new.
- Don't waffle. Remember that employers don't have time to read every word of your CV. Long paragraphs and sentences put people off, so try bullet-points to break up text. Make sure your CV is no longer than two pages long - employers don't want your life history, they just want to see that you've got what it takes to do the job.
- Don't list any failures. Employers have enough trouble finding someone who is right for the job - they don't need help finding reasons not to employ you. If you have to include a mistake from your past, make sure you show the employer that you learnt something from the experience.

Keep it simple

Personal details

Start off with your full name, address, date of birth, home and mobile phone numbers, email address and nationality. If you are offered an interview, the employer will want to get hold of you so give him as many options as possible.

Summary/professional profile

This is the No1 area for selling yourself. Set out your main skills and personal qualities but keep it interesting and tight - one paragraph should do to cover everything.

Education and qualifications

List your qualifications and education history, with the most recent first. You don't need to list the grades for each exam you have passed unless they were exceptional results - simply listing the number and type of exams you've passed is fine. Also, list any relevant professional organisations you belong to and training courses you have been on.

Work experience

Start with your most recent position and work backwards, giving addresses along with start and finish dates. Set out your main responsibilities, duties and most importantly achievements, along with any skills you picked up or improvements you made while you were there. This is a really important section in your CV so make it count - but don't waffle.

If you have not had a full-time job before, detail any part-time jobs you may have held or any placement you have been on.

Other skills

Set out any computer skills you may have and the software you are most familiar with. Can you type, do shorthand or speak a foreign language fluently? If you have a driving licence, let the employer know. If it's clean, tell them.

Interests & hobbies

Briefly list what you get up to in your spare time. Put down any positions you hold in clubs or associations, along with any responsibilities and achievements.

References

Make sure you have at least two people (including one from your previous or current job) who will tell an employer what a thoroughly nice person you are and what a potential asset to the company you would be.

If you want to list them now make sure you include their name, job title, postal & e-mail address and contact phone numbers. Alternatively, just put "Available on request" so the employer knows to follow up references at a later date.

Add a covering letter

The main aim of a covering letter is to encourage an employer to give you a chance. You want them to read your CV, so sell it to them. You should always enclose a covering letter when applying for a job - most employers won't consider you unless you do.

A covering letter should let the employer know why you are interested in the job and why you think you can do it.

The hints and tips below should point you in the right direction:

- Keep it simple. A covering letter should be short and to the point - no more than six paragraphs.
- Mention the job. If you are replying to an advert, mention what the job is and where you saw it. The company may be advertising for other positions and it may not be clear which job you are applying for.
- Sell yourself. Explain why you are the perfect candidate for the job. Show off your strengths and experience. Refer to your CV - if it goes missing then at least an employer will know that you've sent it.
- Check it for mistakes. A silly spelling mistake in a covering letter is likely to cost you your chance of getting an interview. Also, make sure it is addressed to the right person in the right department.

A covering letter can be just as important as a CV in getting you an interview. It's your first point of contact with your potential employer - so make it count.

Shiro enjoyment

New Juke is white up your street

A NEW top-of-the-range version of the Nissan Juke has arrived – and it's white in tune with buyers' tastes.

Replacing the successful Kuro ("kuro" is the Japanese word for "black") limited edition, Shiro moves to the opposite side of the colour spectrum; it means "white" in Japanese. The Juke bearing the badge has a host of white details to mark it out from lesser models in the range.

Inside there's a selection of tasteful white detailing. The centre console, inspired by the shape of a motorcycle fuel tank, is painted white, as are the door panels and window switch surrounds.

The leather-wrapped steering wheel, gear gaiter and the edges of the leather seats all feature white stitching, while the seats themselves have a double-layer fabric with a white background colour visible through the perforated leather facing.

The interior also benefits from a leather-covered centre armrest complete with white stitching, which also provides additional storage; illuminated chrome-plated sill protectors for the front doors and Juke-branded velour floor mats.

Externally, Shiro can be identified by its stylish dark grey 17-inch alloy wheels, the satin silver finish to the door handles and mirror caps plus a gloss black finish to the B-pillar. Although available in any of the colours offered on Juke models, Shiro does have one additional unique hue in its palette: Nightshade, a sophisticated deep aubergine colour.

Shiro builds on the top-of-the-range Tekna grade with prices starting from £17,695. It is available with all three engine choices – a 108bhp 1.5-litre dCi; 113bhp normally aspirated 1.6-litre petrol; and the range-topping turbocharged direct injection petrol 1.6-litre DIG-T with 186bhp. A 4x4 version and CVT automatics are also available.

Deliveries are due to start next month and, like all Jukes, the Shiro will be produced at Nissan's manufacturing plant in Sunderland.

Call Marshall Nissan on 0844 3349607 for details.

Some cars can improve with age

SOME cars appear to get better with age, according to research.

Older versions of the Audi A4, Porsche Boxster and Ford Fiesta are among the cars that appear to make fewer warranty claims, according to analysis of 50,000 policies by Warranty Direct.

On average among the 10 models featuring the greatest disparity in failure rates, newer variants are almost 10 per cent more likely to break down than older cars.

The Ford Fiesta, Volkswagen Golf, Jaguar XJ and Jeep Grand Cherokee all recorded more claims for the previous generation model than the one before.

Warranty Direct managing director, Duncan McClure Fisher, says: "Buying new may be the most desirable option when it comes to purchasing a car but it isn't always the most cost-effective route. "Our analysis shows that new doesn't necessarily mean more reliable. We also found that repair costs are often higher for new models so, as well as paying over the odds for a new car, you may also be opening yourself up to additional, unwanted costs."

10,000 still drive with 12 points on their licence

NUMBER one for breakdown cover and road safety organisation, GEM Motoring Assist, reveals a landslide majority condemning the amount of motorists still driving with 12 points on their licence.

The latest DLVA

figures show that more than 10,000 motorists in the UK are driving despite racking up 12 points or more, due to 'exceptional circumstances' and today, following a recent poll, GEM can reveal that almost 80 per cent of UK drivers don't believe there should be any exceptions to the rule.

David Williams MBE, CEO of GEM Motoring Assist, comments: "It is clear that the large majority of law abiding UK drivers are not happy that other motorists are getting away with dodging penalties by claiming 'exceptional circumstances'. Understandably there are certain cases that would warrant an appeal; however recent figures show just how many thousands of people are working the system and being let off."

David continues: "It is very worrying from a road safety perspective to see how many motorists are still on the roads despite being penalised for dangerous driving, speeding and other traffic offences. Road safety is hugely compromised when so many motorists, not worthy of a licence, are still driving. To make our roads as safe as possible, we need to ensure bans and penalties are taken seriously and only in the most exceptional circumstances should drivers be allowed to keep their licence."

Clarkson would be an adventure too far, say Brit drivers

JEREMY CLARKSON has topped a poll of the celebrities Brits would least like to share a driving adventure with, according to new research by Continental Tyres.

The controversial TV presenter and columnist was rated as the worst person to share a 4x4 drive across the Sahara Desert. Hot on Clarkson's heels was Katie Price and Prime Minister David Cameron a close third.

Three quarters of drivers would rather ditch a celebrity, with nearly half opting for a family member to join them, whilst the rest put friends in front of the famous.

The poll of 2,000 motorists by Continental Tyres identified a good sense of humour as the top trait for a co-driver, ahead of good motoring knowledge and survival skills.

The research was conducted as part of the launch of this year's Conti 4x4 Trophy, where people compete for a place on an epic off road challenge, driving a Hummer across the Sahara Desert.

Tim Bailey, spokesperson for Continental Tyres, said: "Driving thousands of miles through the Atlas Mountains and the fiery sands of the Sahara Desert makes your choice of co-driver incredibly important. It's a long, tough and often dangerous journey.

"Jeremy Clarkson might have motoring credentials but either his calamitous road trips on Top Gear his lack of practical skills or his outspoken views mean most people would leave him behind."

When men were asked which female celebrity they would choose to do the journey with, Kelly Brook was number one. And women chose Robert Pattinson to rev their engine.

For a chance for you and the co-driver of your choice to take part in the ultimate off-road experience in Morocco visit www.conti4x4trophy.co.uk.

The top 10 worst celebs to go on a driving adventure with are:

1. Jeremy Clarkson
2. Katie Price
3. David Cameron
4. Kate Moss
5. Carol Vorderman
6. Christine Bleakley
7. Nick Clegg
8. Madonna
9. Simon Cowell
10. Lewis Hamilton

All-new Ford B-Max to gets Geneva Motor Show launch

The Ford B-Max: Brand new car.

FORD will throw open the doors to its all-new production-ready B-Max compact multi-activity vehicle when it takes a starring role at the 2012 Geneva Motor Show in March.

Ford president and CEO Alan Mulally will unveil the new B-Max, which aims to set new standards with its unique design and best-in-class technological features. Its return to Geneva, in full production form, comes a year after the concept was unveiled at Geneva.

"The B-Max combines an exciting, innovative design with features that only previously have been found in bigger cars," said Stephen Odell, chairman and CEO, Ford of Europe.

"It's a brand new car that responds to the needs of an increasing number of customers who want much more from their small cars."

Bringing the B-Max to production demanded a new approach to door construction, which has resulted in wide-open access for drivers, passengers and luggage, with the centre pillars integrated into the doors themselves.

Ford's innovative new 1.0-litre EcoBoost petrol engine, with its advanced combination of 122bhp power output and 58.9mpg efficiency, will be available, as will Duratorq TDCi diesels. The Ford B-Max goes on sale in September.

Subaru's five-star XV priced from £21,295

The Subaru XV: From £21,295.

SUBARU has announced pricing and spec for its new All-Wheel Drive crossover vehicle, the XV.

Priced from £21,295 for entry level 1.6i S models, the XV is five-star Euro NCAP-rated – indeed it's officially certified as the safest vehicle in its class and scores particularly highly for child occupant safety.

The XV is equipped with two core Subaru technologies: Symmetrical All-Wheel Drive and a Boxer engine.

Three Euro V-compliant Boxer engines are available: 1.6 and 2.0-litre petrol, and 2.0-litre diesel. The 1.6-litre and 2.0-litre petrol engines develop 112bhp and 147bhp respectively, while the 2.0-litre diesel produces 144bhp and 350Nm. The XV is available with either a five and six-speed manual or a six-speed CVT automatic (petrol only).

Reaching 60mph in 9.3 seconds, the 2.0 diesel XV – likely to be the best-selling variant in the UK – offers class-leading fuel economy of 50.4mpg on the combined cycle, while emitting 146g/km of CO₂.

Pricing for the new XV range starts at £21,295 for the 1.6i S models, and rises to £29,995 for the range-topping 2.0D SE Lux Premium. Details at www.subaru.co.uk.

Honda Civic bursts into showrooms

SPARKS are flying as the all-new 2012 Civic advert hits TV screens to coincide with the car arriving at showrooms to begin customer test drives.

The TV campaign can also be viewed at www.youtube.com/hondacivicuk.

Martin Moll, head of marketing, Honda (UK), said: "Our dealers are incredibly excited about taking the launch. We are confident it will be even more successful than its predecessor."

Now in its ninth generation, the 2012 Civic is available from just £16,495 for the entry-level 1.4-litre 100PS i-VTEC SE.

For more details on the new Civic go to www.honda.co.uk or call John Banks Honda on 0845 094 0906.

Meanwhile, Honda has announced that the Civic will race in the FIA World Touring Car Championship (WTCC).

"We have made a decision" said Honda CEO, Takanobu Ito "to enter into the WTCC with the European Civic. We will develop a totally new engine for this project and we are all excited about starting this new challenge."

For this project, Honda has formed a joint partnership with Mugen and J.A.S. Motorsport. Honda R&D is developing a bespoke racing engine, while Mugen will manufacture and maintain it. J.A.S. Motorsport will develop the race car, using the new Honda Civic five-door produced in Honda's Swindon manufacturing plant.

The racing engine is a 1.6-litre 4-cylinder direct injection turbo-charged petrol engine, developed in accordance with FIA's Super 2000 regulations.

Women are better at parking than men, study shows

WOMEN are better at parking than men, according to new research.

Stereotyped views about women's spatial skills should be put into reverse gear and beat a swift retreat, it appears, following a study by car parks operator NCP giving women a higher average score at parking than men.

An analysis of drivers across the country looking at technique, accuracy and time taken parking gave women a score of 13.4 out of 20 compared to 12.3 for men.

Women are slower than men at parking, taking an average of 21 seconds compared with 16 for men, the study found.

But they scored better on finding a space, positioning the car, reversing into spaces and making sure the car was centrally placed once in a space.

The study found men often missed available spaces by driving too quickly through car parks.

Well over a third of women opted to reverse into spaces – the method preferred by instructors – compared with just over a quarter of men.

Men were also happier with the position of their cars once in the space, with only 29 per cent choosing to start repositioning the car.

A majority of women found themselves shuffling forward and backwards to try to obtain a better final position, the study found, resulting in more than half of women parking centrally, compared with only a quarter of men.

Researchers said the study found men also loved to "pose park" when accompanied by a female passenger by opting to squeeze into a small space when a bigger one was available.

The study was conducted by looking at CCTV footage of 453 drivers parking across the country with further research carried out into the views of 2,000 drivers.

The scoring system was designed for NCP by driving instructor Neil Beeson of ITV's Last Chance Driving School documentary.

He said: "I was quite surprised by the results, because in my experience men have always been the best learners and usually performed better in lessons."

"However, it's possible that women have retained the information better. The results also appear to dispel the myth that men have better spatial awareness than women."

Grand new Chevy – with a grand off

THE new Chevrolet Aveo is now on sale at Trumpington-based Cambridge Chevrolet.

"We had a very successful launch with a number of orders placed," reports general manager Luke Gordon. "There were many positive comments with regards to the Aveo's new fresh appearance, most importantly focusing around the excellent drive and economy of the car, and in particular the diesel engines which benefit from zero road tax and an average of up to 78mpg.

"Currently we are still offering a thousand pounds off the list price throughout the entire range."

The Aveo's sporty driving experience is integral to its appeal. It consists of an exceptionally rigid body-frame-integral structure which is also key to the vehicle's advanced safety performance. A set of carefully tuned sensors is wired to six airbags, which are standard, as is a four-channel anti-lock braking system (ABS) with brake assist.

Fuel efficiency, enjoyable driving and a small environmental footprint were the main criteria guiding the design of the Aveo's engine line-up. The 1.4-litre petrol engine (97bhp) gives the Aveo lively acceleration and an immediate feeling of performance during low-speed driving.

The petrol engine range also includes 1.2-litre units rated at 84bhp plus a 1.3 VCDi diesel engine. The latter is the first VCDi diesel to appear in a small Chevrolet in Europe.

Like all Chevrolet models, the Aveo delivers remarkable value for money. Priced from £9,995, all models are covered by Chevrolet's five-year warranty.

General Vacancies

Be part of an exceptional story

Genzyme has pioneered the development and delivery of transformative therapies for patients affected by rare and debilitating diseases for over 30 years. We accomplish our goals through world-class research and with the compassion and commitment of our employees.

Based on the Cambridge/Suffolk border, our Haverhill site has recently enjoyed capital investment exceeding £100M. The positive results this has generated are clear to see; the site is now a state-of-the-art facility providing manufacturing, labelling, distribution and research facilities. We now have a number of exciting new opportunities available across the site for those with the right skills and enthusiastic approach.

QC Analytical Technician x 3 (ref 28821)
 – Salary range £17,238 - £24,133

This role is responsible for routine laboratory duties including sampling and analysis of raw materials and drug substances, documenting analytical data and results according to cGMP and reviewing activities. You will be a level qualified or equivalent with strong analytical skills. A background in science and/or previous experience of working in a laboratory or regulated environment is desirable.

Project Specialist (ref 28050)
 – Salary range £36,508 - £51,111

Working with our Materials Management team this role supports secondary operations value stream project activities including new product introduction and portfolio management in support of continuous improvement. Responsibilities include development of project scopes and identifying business benefits as well as establishing and managing teams to deliver projects in a timely and efficient manner.

Senior Reliability Engineer (ref 23686)
 – Salary Range £36,508 - £51,111

Working within our Maintenance and Facilities department this role will be responsible for implementing the reliability engineering program across the site and will be required to identify and manage asset reliability risk that could adversely affect plant or business operations. The successful candidate will be involved in loss elimination, risk management and life cycle asset management. Consideration will be given to candidates with relevant experience in Pharmaceutical, Chemical, Petrochem, Nuclear, Aviation or FMCG regulated environments and who hold a relevant engineering degree. Knowledge of RCM, CBM, risk based and predictive maintenance, FMECA and overall equipment effectiveness would also be desirable together with a good awareness of EHS.

Shift Manager (ref 27191)

– Salary Range £30,044 - £42,061 + £6,123p/a shift allowance

This role supports our 24/7 API manufacturing plant. You will provide management and leadership for the manufacturing teams and support site utilities to meet weekly schedules utilising all available resources and ensuring all appropriate compliance standards are applied and met. A background in science or engineering, experience in the pharmaceutical or a related industry and managerial experience in a demand driven environment would be an advantage

Temp Process Technician (ref 28886)

– Salary Range £15,671 - £21,940 + £6,123p/a shift allowance

Working on our 24/7 manufacturing plant you will operate, monitor and control process plant/equipment to agreed schedules in order to achieve safe, quality intermediate or finished products. You will also perform and record cleaning operations for process plant/equipment and facilitate the movement of raw and waste materials within manufacturing. This contract will run until 31st July 2012.

For more information about these roles and to apply through our online recruitment system please go to the Careers Section of www.genzyme.com

Your CV

When you send your CV off to a potential employer, remember that you won't be the only one. Hundreds of other people could be applying for the job as well.

So what are you going to do to make you stand out from the crowd? Why should an employer take a chance on you instead of someone else?

Your CV is your first real chance to sell yourself to a potential employer. Most employers will scan through a CV in about 30 seconds so you need to grab their attention from the start - and make them want to invite you for an interview.

There are five main areas to consider when writing your CV:

- Make sure your CV looks the part. Your CV should look clean and tidy - don't scrawl it out on a piece of A4 paper. If you haven't got access to a PC or printer, ask a friend or use your local library. Use a good quality paper and steer clear of fancy borders and front covers.
- Watch out for silly spelling and grammar mistakes. They make you look lazy and show employers that you don't really care. It's not difficult to do a spell check on your PC and if you're really stuck then don't just guess, reach for a dictionary. Get a friend to read through your CV for you - a second opinion is always useful.
- Make sure your CV is well organised. When you list your previous jobs, make sure the dates are correct and try not to leave any gaps. If you took time out to go travelling then say so - employers won't mark you down just because you've tried something new.
- Don't waffle. Remember that employers don't have time to read every word of your CV. Long paragraphs and sentences put people off, so try bullet-points to break up text. Make sure your CV is no longer than two pages long - employers don't want your life history, they just want to see that you've got what it takes to do the job.
- Don't list any failures. Employers have enough trouble finding someone who is right for the job - they don't need help finding reasons not to employ you. If you have to include a mistake from your past, make sure you show the employer that you learnt something from the experience.

Keep it simple

Personal details

Start off with your full name, address, date of birth, home and mobile phone numbers, email address and nationality. If you are offered an interview, the employer will want to get hold of you so give him as many options as possible.

Summary/professional profile

This is the No1 area for selling yourself. Set out your main skills and personal qualities but keep it interesting and tight - one paragraph should do to cover everything.

Education and qualifications

List your qualifications and education history, with the most recent first. You don't need to list the grades for each exam you have passed unless they were exceptional results - simply listing the number and type of exams you've passed is fine. Also, list any relevant professional organisations you belong to and training courses you have been on.

Work experience

Start with your most recent position and work backwards, giving addresses along with start and finish dates. Set out your main responsibilities, duties and most importantly achievements, along with any skills you picked up or improvements you made while you were there. This is a really important section in your CV so make it count - but don't waffle.

If you have not had a full-time job before, detail any part-time jobs you may have held or any placement you have been on.

Other skills

Set out any computer skills you may have and the software you are most familiar with. Can you type, do shorthand or speak a foreign language fluently? If you have a driving licence, let the employer know. If it's clean, tell them.

Interests & hobbies

Briefly list what you get up to in your spare time. Put down any positions you hold in clubs or associations, along with any responsibilities and achievements.

References

Make sure you have at least two people (including one from your previous or current job) who will tell an employer what a thoroughly nice person you are and what a potential asset to the company you would be.

If you want to list them now make sure you include their name, job title, postal & e-mail address and contact phone numbers. Alternatively, just put "Available on request" so the employer knows to follow up references at a later date.

Add a covering letter

The main aim of a covering letter is to encourage an employer to give you a chance. You want them to read your CV, so sell it to them. You should always enclose a covering letter when applying for a job - most employers won't consider you unless you do.

A covering letter should let the employer know why you are interested in the job and why you think you can do it.

The hints and tips below should point you in the right direction:

- Keep it simple. A covering letter should be short and to the point - no more than six paragraphs.
- Mention the job. If you are replying to an advert, mention what the job is and where you saw it. The company may be advertising for other positions and it may not be clear which job you are applying for.
- Sell yourself. Explain why you are the perfect candidate for the job. Show off your strengths and experience. Refer to your CV - if it goes missing then at least an employer will know that you've sent it.
- Check it for mistakes. A silly spelling mistake in a covering letter is likely to cost you your chance of getting an interview. Also, make sure it is addressed to the right person in the right department.

Aero's riders flying

FOUR members of the expanding Team Aerocycles Haverhill made their debuts in the third round of the Whyte Mountain Bike series in Thetford Forest. They all completed the gruelling eight-mile course with their best-placed rider again being Nick Ainsworth, who led for two of the four laps before succumbing to the after-effects of his illness and finished seventh in the over-40s category.

He was followed over the line by Steve Foster, Nick Law and Sean Goodwin. Newcomer Rob Elliot (above) powered his way around three laps in the 18-39 category, while 12-year-old Sam Tiplady was a creditable 24th in the two-lap fun race.

Mail men on the march

HAVERHILL battled to a 4-1 victory at Gosfield in the first round of the Mail on Sunday competition. The tie was originally due to be staged at Coupals Road, but was switched to Gosfield, as despite the frost and bitterly-cold conditions, they were still able to play on their main greens.

Details (Haverhill names first): Eamonn Bareham lost 5&4 Stuart Jones, Andy Fish bt John Seal 2-up, Jim Walker won 5&3 Joe Mainard, Bob Spittle won 2&1 Mitchell Edey, Gerry Scott won 5&3 Ed Fullerlove.

Haverhill still searching

HAVERHILL are still in the market for an overseas player as they count down towards the Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship.

Club chairman Steven Woodley said they had been trying all winter to strengthen, having spent most of their debut Division One campaign staring over their shoulders at the relegation struggle.

They have made one signing, though. Ahmit Gupta, an all-rounder who played a handful of games for them three years ago before joining Gibbs Denley East Anglian Premier League side, Halstead, has committed himself to the club for the season.

"He's our only definite signing so far, but we haven't ruled out an overseas player yet," said Woodley. "It's so difficult to compete financially with other clubs – it's a shame that it comes down to money at our level.

"We probably need one more decent player to help us get to mid-table or above. We feel we can hold our own in this division as we have some good youngsters."

The club started their net sessions at the Samuel Ward Upper School on Friday in preparation for their first game of the season – a friendly at Sudbury on April 14 before the first league game against Mildenhall the following week.

However, Haverhill's player registration night is on March 13 and it will be then when they discover if former skipper Adam Dellar will join Raj Singh and Sam Powell in leaving the club.

I wish we'd had freeze last year

PETER Betts rued the timing of the cold snap that wiped out Mid-Anglia's football fixtures at the weekend, including Haverhill Rovers' Ridgeons League, Premier Division match against Dereham.

Betts endured a lengthy injury list in November with several key players sidelined by injuries, but at present the Rovers boss has a fully-fit squad available.

Dan Cornwell would have missed Saturday's game, but Betts had no other player concerns and should have everyone back for Saturday's match at home to Felixstowe & Walton.

"It's frustrating that this didn't happen in November when we had loads of players injured," said Betts. "But it's just one of those things that's completely beyond our control."

With just two midweek fixtures remaining, Betts is not concerned about a potential

Dan Cornwell: Would have missed last Saturday's game but should be back for this weekend fixture pile-up and said the focus was now on finishing the season as strongly as possible.

"We're not going to get relegated and we're not going to win the league," said Betts.

"I want to build a squad capable of challenging the top teams, so I'll be keeping an eye out for players but also looking to see good performances from our players. We'll hopefully have a good end to the season."

While the cold weather makes training outside difficult, a gym facility at the New Croft will help ensure the players maintain their fitness levels.

"At the moment we're concentrating on core fitness," he said. "The new facility we've got has got cardio-vascular machines, so there are things like treadmills, cross-trainers and rowing machines that the players can use."

"A lot of clubs won't have access to something like that, so we're really grateful to have it."
